I assure you nothing good ever comes from Asian manufacturers

The true heroes in the global humanitarian field are the people in these countries who have the wherewithal to immigrate to another country but instead stay in their countries to apply their skills to benefit their fellow countrymen... and, unfortunately, our immigration system tends to entice these very types of people to abandon their countrymen... at the expense of our own peoples who are overburdened tax increases, hidden taxes, such as the Kosher Tax on most edibles, inflation, downsizing of products and diminishment of quality, exportation of all industries—especially so where-as concerns overseas telephone call-centers and textiles manufacturing, et cetera.

The impossibility of making the slightest dent in world poverty through humanitarian aid is actually worse than it seems... because in the last year (2009), when we took in 1 million immigrants... these developing nations added eighty million more people into the impoverished population. And this year (2010), our politicians are bringing in another million legal immigrants. And this year, according to the United Nations, these countries are expected to add another eighty million impoverished people to their over-populated nations. And next year you can be quite sure that unless stopped by the voters, our politicians will bring in another million immigrants... and these poor, undeserving countries, unfortunately, will be adding another eighty million people into their impoverished countries.

We could take five million a year but we’d never get ahead of what’s happening in these countries—not in this century—certainly not in our lifetimes.

Don’t you see that immigration can never be an effective or significant way to deal with the suffering people of the world? They have to be helped where they live. 99.9% of them will never be able to immigrate to rich country. There is no hope for them.

The only place that 99.9% of these people can be helped is where they live. And we should help them there—in their homelands—where they were born and where they belong.

Those who are desperately poor—making less than $2 a day—that is 3000 gumballs viz. 3 billion—{Mr. Beck places a container of gumballs on the table}—and every year we take a million—{Mr. Beck removes one gumball and holds it up before dropping it into the cylinder full of gumballs representing the native-born population}—and suggest that we’ve somehow made a humanitarian difference... of course we don’t.

We pull our immigrants from these desperately poor populations... these people who are too poor... too sick... too disconnected to make it here as legal immigrants—and we tend to pull our immigrants out of the better off poor of the world... but how many people in the world live in countries that have average incomes lower than $2 a day? The World Bank tells us that that number is 3 billion-plus—{Mr. Beck places a container of gumballs on the table}—another 2.6 billion people of the 5.6 billion people in the world who live in countries with, on average, incomes below $2 a day—{Mr. Beck places another container of gumballs on the table}—that is 5600 gumballs viz. 5.6 billion people!

So what is it that the elites are telling us? They’re telling us that when we take this 1 million immigrants—{Mr. Beck removes one gumball and holds it up before dropping it into the container representing the native-born population}—that we somehow-or-another are tackling world poverty. And we have to do it regardless the effect on our own poor and unemployed and homeless! our working poor! the most vulnerable members of your society! regardless of effect on our natural resources...

In accordance to the Bank of International Settlements (BIS), every “Strawman Citizen Possessions” viz. we, the “Slave Society” in the “Free World” is forfeit of/for any-and-all property and assets forever as collateral in exchange for acceptance of total national debt forgiveness of the International Monetary Fund (IMF) World Debt Reset Program—and the BIS, as creditor, is owner of all “Human Cattle” collateral to be foreclosed on by the World Debt Reset Program when our insolvent corporation-nations default on our governments ever-increasing Gross National Debt (GND)... which is why our elected officials will never ever desist in further indebting us as nations (governed under the criminal central bank fiasco cooked-up by those “international fiat-fraudsters” which own us all... every single one of us “goyishe kopf”): Further, those “red pencil”-pushing statistics-manipulating socio-economic bankers grow ever-increasingly richer inasmuch as for every dollar invested in their banks... they are allowed to loan out ten times as much as actually “black-penciled” in the manipulation of their crooked financial books hence, those “assholes” which we “elect”—and they are all “each-and-every one” of them all asshole and mouth with those God-damned “money-changing” Khazarean-Mafiosi Nazis having their hands fully-up their collective asses, working their mouths and pulling their strings to make them dance; truly, we are all blind fools for trusting those self-serving quislings enriching them—those Judas-goats—both the left hand and the right of the same devil at our expense and leading us one-and-all up the ramp into the abattoir of insolvency. This is why our governments give out more than we ever put in to our collective coffer... but only after ensuring that their

Some people say that mass immigration can help! Is that true? Well... no it’s not—and this paper will explain why using gumballs: Consider this—a gumball represents the 1 million legal immigrants that ‘we’ have taken in every year on average since 1990...

Now, who in the world deserves our humanitarian compassion?

According to the World Bank, the desperately poor of the world make less than $2 a day. And how many people make less than $2 a day in the world? We’ll start with Africa—in Africa there are 650 million people who make less than $2 a day... and in India—another 890 million people desperately poor... China [] and, unfortunately, throughout the rest of Asia there are a ‘heartbreaking’ 810 million people making less than $2 a day. And, finally, there’s 105 million of Latin America’s population that are desperately poor.

All told the World Bank says “there are 3 billion people in the world who are desperately poor... making less than $2 a day!” that’s 3000 gumballs and every year—{Mr. Beck removes one gumball and holds it up}—and we take in a million—{Mr. Beck drops the gumball into a cylinder full of gumballs representing the native-born population}—and suggest that we’ve somehow made a humanitarian difference. Of course, we don’t.

We pull our immigrants from these desperately poor populations, but do we actually help? These people are too poor... too sick... too disconnected to make it here as immigrants, so we tend to pull our immigrants out of the better off poor of the world [] but how many people in the world live in countries that have average incomes lower than $2 a day? The World Bank tells us that that number is at least three billion... plus another 2.6 billion people of the more than 5.6+ billion people in the world who live in countries with average incomes below $2 a day, which is 5600 gumballs! And, so, “what the globalist elites are telling us is that when we take this 1 million immigrants—{Mr. Beck holds up one gumball}—is that we somehow-or-another are tackling the problem of world poverty—and we have to do it regardless of the effect on our poor and unemployed and homeless...

There has been more than a 35% increase in “homelessness” in Victoria (BC). There are lots of programs in place for connected politicians to garner incomes from ‘homelessness.’

In Toronto (ON), young people (ages 16—24) make up 20% of the homeless. In Ontario, youths under age 18 are ineligible for social assistance... and those over don’t receive a livable allowance. The Federal government passes responsibility for homelessness on to the Provincial authorities... whose politicians allocate $126+ million to their representatives and offices to deal with the problem—but after wages and expenses how much really gets to the people who need help!? before Provincial officials pass the problem on to municipalities: In Victoria, $1.6+ million was allocated to dealing with the homeless problem: There are about 2000 homeless people in Greater Victoria... amounting to about $800 per homeless person per year... most of which goes into wages and paper-pushing expenses.

Homelessness results principally from a lack of affordable housing. So... the question is: Why are our politicians ignoring our people to import millions of Third World immigrants every year through such nefarious schemes as the “Express Entry Program” and “Family Reunification Program”? More-so, why are our politicians offering permanent residence to foreign-born people who come here without skills and/or speaking English/French as a second language!? Hell! In places like Richmond (BC) Canadians need to learn Mandarin just to read street signs and advertising.

Now, Parliament will bullshit you with statistics, saying: We only ‘admitted’ less than 200,000 immigrants last year... but they say nothing about those 100,000+’s illegal immigrants which the RCMP ‘bellhops’ help cross over into Canada from New York State alone every year, nor mention the 100,000+’s illegal aliens who enter BC from Washington State or through ‘snakehead human trafficking’ into BC’s ports every year; neither do they concern us with the 100,000+’s “temporary foreign workers” and “foreign students” which fail to leave Canada whence they shouldst... and the crap pile just keeps on growing... and there’s no end to it, eh!

Our working poor taxpayers are the most vulnerable members of our society—regardless of the effect on our natural resources; even if we went by the most radical proposals presented to us by our lying, thieving politicians, which will actually increase immigration intake this next year... totally overwhelming our physical, natural and social infrastructures... we couldn’t make any noticeable difference! on world poverty—no how!? Moreover, we may be really hurting the impoverished people of the world because the million that we do take are among the most energetic, and more often the better educated and, certainly, the most dissatisfied people who, if they did not emigrate, would be the agents for positive change—to improve the lot of all those people in those countries...

cushy retirement funds are made secure first in doing so! which is why every single one of those thieving liars most-assuredly invents some new reason to impose further taxations upon our national resources ere they fall out of favour with us idiots who continually elect them—surely we deserve what we get because we should have put an end to this madness long ago... instead, though, we pass the buck on to our children’s children Luke 23.21. Our “selected” politicians know which side of the bread is buttered, though, and every fucking one of them serves the non-governmental lobbyists and the multi-national corporate racketeers ravaging our national resources and drowning us in a Kalergian-subhuman tsunami of replacement population Third World immigration.

Even if we went by the most radical proposals our politicians are telling us will hap, regardless of our thoughts and feelings on the subject, which is to actually double our immigration to 2+ million a year... which would totally overwhelm our physical natural and social infrastructures! we couldn’t make a noticeable difference in the problem of world poverty. Moreover, we are actually hurting the impoverished people of the world, because the millions that we do take—{Mr. Beck removes one gumball and holds it up before dropping it into the container representing the native-born population}—are among the most energetic, often the better educated, certainly the most dissatisfied people which, if they did not emigrate, would be the agents for positive change and improvement to the lot of all the people in those poor countries.

The true heroes in the global humanitarian field are the people in these countries who have the wherewithal to emigrate to another country but, instead, choose to remain in their own countries and apply their skills to the benefit of their fellow countrymen. Unfortunately—{Mr. Beck removes one gumball and holds it up before dropping it into the container representing the native-born population}—as said, our immigration system tends to entice these very people to abandon their countrymen...

The impossibility of making even a dent is actually worse than it looks here because last year, when we took 1 million immigrants from these countries—{Mr. Beck removes one gumball and holds it up}—adding another million to our immigration—{Mr. Beck drops the gumball into a cylinder full of gumballs representing the native-born population}—to two million a year—{Mr. Beck removes another gumball and holds it up before dropping it into the cylinder full of gumballs representing the native-born population}—which would totally overwhelm our physical natural and social infrastructures... we couldn’t make a noticeable difference... and, as said, we may really be hurting the impoverished people of the world because the million that we do take are among the most energetic, often the better educated, certainly the most dissatisfied people which, if they did not emigrate would be the agents for positive change and improvement to the lot of all the poor people in those countries.

The true heroes in the global humanitarian field are the people in these countries who have the wherewithal to immigrate to another country but, instead, choose to remain in their own countries and apply their skills to the benefit of their fellow countrymen. Unfortunately our immigration system tends to entice these very types of people to in abandon their countrymen.

The impossibility of making even the slightest dent is actually worse than it looks here because last year, when we took in 1 million immigrants—{Mr. Beck removes one gumball and holds it up before dropping it into the cylinder full of gumballs representing the native-born population}—these countries added another eighty million—{Mr. Beck places another larger container of gumballs on the table}—more people to their impoverished populations. And this year our politicians are bringing another million legal immigrants—{Mr. Beck removes one gumball and holds it up before dropping it into the cylinder full of gumballs representing the native-born population}—and this year, according to the United Nations, these poor countries are expected to add another eighty million people—{Mr. Beck places another larger container of gumballs on the table}—and next year you can be quite sure that our politicians, unless stopped by the voters, will bring in another million immigrants—{Mr. Beck removes one gumball and holds it up before dropping it into the container representing the native-born population}—and these countries, unfortunately, will be adding another eighty million people—{Mr. Beck places another larger container of gumballs on the table}—into these impoverished nations. We could take five million a year—{Mr. Beck removes five gumball, one at a time, and holds each of them up before it is dropped it into the cylinder full of gumballs representing the native-born population}— but we never get ahead of what’s happening in these poor countries— not in this century—certainly not in our lifetimes.

Don’t you see!? Immigration can never be an effective nor significant way to deal with the suffering people of the world. They have to be helped where they live. 99.9% of them will never be able to immigrate to rich country—there’s no hope for them.

The only place that these 99.9% of the poor deprived people can be helped is where they live. Let’s help them there... where they were born... where they belong... in those very countries they so aggressively destroy ere seeking refuge amongst us. Or we, ourselves, for our benevolence will be looking at a future that looks like what is happening in their evil nations... for, most assuredly, those dirty rotten subhuman bring with them—in their black hearts and diseased minds—the very troubles which they flee—and just how long do you think it will be before our own once-great familial nations is sickened by the same afflictions they infect our once-healthy peoples with!? sicken us with the same incurable plagues that ravage the Third World “developing nations”!?

Where will we run to hide!?

This is what we bequeath unto our children and our grandchildren, who, by the middle of the next decade, will succumb to the Globalist gulag-favella ghetto-slum and world-wide civil war... in every Western nation... in all our cities, towns and villages... on every street and in every building... and in every home...

Matthew 16.4
“A wicked and adulterous generation demands a sign, but none will be given it except the sign of Jonah.”

This is not conjecture. This is not subjective. This is not what might be. This is what will be... if our governments refuse to lower immigration to something like a traditional level, back to where it was in 1965, back to the golden era of immigration below 200,000, we would immediately slow the pace of growth and get some relief the real improvement though would come for our grandchildren who would see a stabilizing of the population by 2050.

World Population Statistics

<http://www.nationalpolicyinstitute.org/publications.php?b=population>

As a percentage of world inhabitants the White population will plummet to a single digit (9.76%) by 2060 from a high-water mark of 27.98% in 1950.

In 1950 the world population was 2,475,552,007...:

27.98% White (692,661,070);
27.77% Asian (687,557,199);
20.73% Central Asian (i.e. Indians) (513,315,801);
8.97% African (222,000,896);
7.39% South-East Asian (182,920,466);
3.78% Arabic (North Africans and Middle East) (93,692,024); and
3.37% American Indian/Mestizos (83,504,551)

In 2010 the world population was 7,386,547,818...:

25.37% Central Asian (1,873,821,248);
23.24% East Asian (Chinese and Japanese) (1,716,389,205);
16.43% European (1,213,715,944);
15.57% African (1,150,445,632);
8.76% South-East Asian (647,391,751);
6.55% Arabic (484,094,305); and
4.07% American Indian/Mestizos (300,689,733)

By 2020 the world population was expected to be about 8,147,896,914... but it is roughly 7.8 Billion:

26.45% Central Asian (2,154,894,435);
22.35% East Asian (1,821,088,947);
14.72% European (1,199,151,353);
16.86% African (1,373,632,085);
8.75% South-East Asian (712,778,318);
6.77% Arabic (551,383,413); and
4.11% American Indian/Mestizos (334,968,363)

.By 2030 the world population will be 8,818,568,322...:

27.49% Central Asian (2,424,256,239);
21.1% North Asian (1,861,152,904);
18.33% African (1,616,764,964);
13.27% European (1,170,371,721);
8.72% South-East Asian (769,087,805);
6.93% Arabic (611,484,205); and
4.14% American Indian/Mestizos (365,450,484)

By 2040 the world population will be 9,446,161,855...:

28.2% Central Asian (2,664,257,607);
20.49% African (1,935,267,662);
19.6% East Asian (1,851,847,139);
11.97% European (1,130,579,082);
8.6% South-East Asian (812,156,722);
7.02% Arabic (unavailable); and
4.12% American Indian/Mestizos (389,204,765)

By 2050 the world population will be 9,973,489,744...:

28.66% Central Asian (2,858,748,412);
22.86% African (2,279,745,306);
18.18% East Asian (1,812,958,349);
10.84% European (1,080,833,602);
8.36% South-East Asian (834,084,953);
7.04% Arabic (701,956,962); and
4.06% American Indian/Mestizos (405,162,160)

By 2060 the world population will be 10,582,891,643...:

28.98% Central Asian (3,067,437,046);
25.38% African (2,685,539,970);
16.77% East Asian (1,774,886,224);
9.76% European (1,033,276,924);
8.09% South-East Asian (856,605,247);
7.02% Arabic (743,372,423); and
3.99% American Indian/Mestizos (421,773,809)

Using 2010 as the base reference the Blacks or Sub-Saharan Africans will expand almost 133% to 2.7 billion by 2060. By the middle of this century Blacks will represent 25.38% of world population, which is up dramatically from 8.97% recorded in 1950.

The 21st century is shaping up to be the status reversal of Whites and Blacks... and the Indian baby boom. The Whites will assume a single-digit minority role! Of the seven population groups studied only Whites are projected to sustain an absolute decline in population growth.

In 1950 Whites and Blacks were respectively 27.98% and 8.97% of world population... by 2060 these figures will almost reverse as Blacks surge to 25.38% and Whites shrink to 9.76% of world population. From 2010 the White population will decline while Blacks will add 1.2 billion to their numbers.

In this time frame the Indian subcontinent will gain 1.2 billion people.
